

Self-taught artist-painter, Dave grew up in France in the nineties. His encounter with Hip-Hop culture began at the end of the 80s and acted as a revelation... From then on, he only continued to paint, the walls, the graffiti.

From wall to wall, he develops his technique and becomes a professional painter, the "trompe l'oeil" is from now on his daily life.

It was not until 2016 that Dave allowed himself to become an artist ... He began to paint what has always touched him and called out to him: nature and especially our endangered species.

The artist seeks to challenge us on the challenge of evolution that awaits us: he paints wild animals transposed into an urban universe, a clever mix of "trompe l'oeil", fake material and graffiti lettering.

He tells us a story, the story of our sinking world. To do this, he uses visual antagonisms, color contrasts, he opposes strength and weakness; and causes conflicting emotions.

It is by evolving that we refine our objectives, performance and adaptation. It is in this perpetual quest that the artist subscribes, who day after day evolves in his choices and his trajectories.

A word from the artist:

"I want to share strong emotions that will perhaps initiate awareness of our humanity. My colors and my subjects reflect a powerful aspiration to make our minds evolve towards a more conscious world. "
